GEORGE HORACE LORIMER'S BEST BOOK
JACK SPURLOCK—PRODIGAL

"If you are in the dumps and want to get clear of them take up this story."

—Brooklyn Citizen.

"It is very distinctly funny."

—N. Y. Times.

Rich in irresistible humor, shrewd philosophy, epigram, and sound horse sense.

Jack Spurlock says:

"Even Satan, who had always been hanging around when I had plenty of money, seemed to have no use for me now that I was broke, which led me to reflect that there must be a good deal of compulsory virtue in the world."

Illustrated by F. R. Gruger. $1.50.

DIANA OF DOBSON'S

By Cecily
Hamilton

THE remarkable romance of a very pretty and clever but rebellious shop-girl who unexpectedly inherits £300. Instead of safely investing her small fortune for the slight income that she would get, she decides to blow it all in on a month of glorious fun. She has the fun—Paris gowns, a trip to Switzerland, two love affairs, and a grand, good time, until her last pound goes. Then, turning her back on both her lovers, she returns to London penniless to hunt another job and it turns out well.

THE POST- GIRL

By Edward
C. Booth

THE London Daily News says that the publication of this book "marks the appearance of a new and powerful novelist." The heroine Pam, the Post-Girl, might be own cousin to Babbie, in the "Little Minister," for she is surely the quaintest, dearest piece of charm and tenderness that has been put into a book in many a day. There are splendid dramatic scenes, but from the first page to the last the author attracts us by his humor and, like William de Morgan, by the delightful way in which he tells his story.

NOTES IN SEASON.

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD have just published a timely book, entitled "The New Old Healing," by Henry Wood, in which this veteran writer on metaphysics discusses the so-called "new" religious healing movement and traces its identity with old spiritual and psychical healing laws.

SMALL, MAYNARD & Co. will publish shortly a story entitled "Fate's a Fiddler," by Edwin George Pinkham, with illustrations by Lester Ralph. The story opens in a second-hand bookshop in Charlestown, Mass., and continues in Swampscott, a suburb chiefly occupied by Summer residents. The title is taken from Henley's "Double Ballade of Life and Fate," which has the refrain, "Fate's a fiddler, life's a dance." They have also nearly ready Professor Hyslop's "Psychical Research and the Resurrection," which has long been awaited with much interest, on account of its dealing with the message from the late Dr. Richard Hodgson.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY publish this week a new "Barbara" book entitled "The Open Window," a collection of twelve stories bound together by the unusual device of making each story correspond to a month, and thus showing throughout the year the influence of the seasons on temperament and the human character. The book will be none the less attractive to admirers of "Barbara's" work for introducing some of the characters from her earlier books. Though the authorship of "The Garden of a Commuter's Wife," "People of the Whirlpool," etc., has become an open secret, the name that appears on her new book is "Barbara" and not Mabel Osgood Wright. They have also just ready "Stories New and Old," by Hamilton W. Mabie, a collection of typical English and American short stories, by Dickens, Shorthouse, Poe, Hawthorne and others, with introductions, and a general introduction on the short story as a literary form; "Constitutional Government in the United States," by Professor Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton University; also, a revised edition of Professor Harry Snyder's standard work on "Soils and Fertilizers."

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish on the 27th inst. the first part of a work to be completed in three volumes under the general title of Mirabeau and the French Revolution, by Dr. Fred Morrow Flinn. The first volume, entitled "The Youth of Mirabeau," closes with the year 1774 when he legally came of age; the second will follow Mirabeau's fortunes during his confinement in the French prisons, and during his activity as a publicist and in the time of his residence in Holland, England and Germany, ending in 1788, with the preparations for elections to the States General; the third will deal with Mirabeau and the National Assembly. They will bring out at the same time a work on "The Naturalization of the Supernatural," by Frank Podmore, who, tracing in a lucid and vigorous style the history of the spiritualist movements, gives some rather surprising exposures, together with explanations of some of the ghost stories which have hitherto been accepted by the followers of psychical research as incontrovertible; "Villa Rubein," by John Galsworthy, a story whose plot has a simple complexity, one might say, of a troublesome problem in real life; also, "The Roman Empire, B.C. 29 to A.D. 476," by H. Stuart Jones, a new volume in The Story of the Nations series.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The prices of net books published under the rules of the American Publishers' Association are preceded in this list by a double asterisk , and the word net follows the price. The prices of fiction (not net) published under the rules are preceded by a dagger †. The prices of net books not covered by the rules, whether published by members of the American Publishers' Association or not, are preceded by a single asterisk, and the word net follows the price.

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A.: Augustus; B.: Benjamin; C.: Charles; D.: David; E.: Edward; F.: Frederic; G.: George; H.: Henry; I.: Isaac; J.: John; L.: Louis; N.: Nicholas; P.: Peter; R.: Richard; S.: Samuel; T.: Thomas; W.: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. 48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Annesley, Mrs. Maude. The door of darkness. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1908. 349 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The novel opens at Monte Carlo. Mr. Hamilton stands behind his daughter's chair watching with much amusement her initiation into the "game." A distinguished looking man sitting next to her, who always wins, gives her advice, and it is shown that both the girl and the man have occult powers. The scene is transferred to England, the Hamiltons finding themselves near neighbors to their acquaintance of Monte Carlo. He has an Italian name and is apparently a gentleman. An intense love affair follows, which has some gruesome episodes. The Italian, it is intimated, has lived many generations and is under a frightful curse, which forbids him to marry. The dramatic ending is left to the reader.

Astley, Rev. Hugh J. Dukinfield. Pre-historic archæology and the Old Testament: being the Donellan lectures delivered before the University of Dublin in 1906-1907; enlarged, and with notes and appendices. [N. Y., Scribner, imported,] 1908. 11+314+40 p. O. cl., *$2 net.

Author is fellow of the Royal Anthropological Institute, and vicar of East and West Rudham, Norfolk, England. The lectures aim "to trace the course and progress of modern scientific discovery in regard to the earth and man, and the position of the latter as the last and final issue of the evolutionary process . . ."

Balleine, G. R. A history of the Evangelical party in the Church of England; with 4 illustrations. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1908. 12+338 p. D. cl., *$1.75 net.

The author has tried to keep strictly within the limits of his title. The book does not profess to be a complete history of the Church of England since 1729, nor a complete history of the Evangelical movement. On the one hand little has been said about the work of the High Church Party, except when necessary to explain the attitude of the Evangelicals, and hardly anything at all about the work of the Broad Church men, and nothing of the Evangelical party in the Church of Ireland or within the Episcopal church in Scotland. Bibliographies follow each chapter. Index.

Case, Frances Powell, ["Frances Powell," pseud.] Old Mr. Davenant's money. N. Y., Scribner, 1908. c. 3-328 p. D. cl., *$1.50.

When the story opens, Pauline Davenant had lived twenty years on a lonely New Jersey farm, with a severe grandmother and a crabbed maiden aunt. She is invited to spend a summer with a wealthy cousin on Long Island, her life only then just beginning. Her grandfather, old Mr. Davenant, had made a strange will, leaving all his money to one of the children of this cousin. This is the mystery of the story, the question being who really got the money. Pauline is much admired, but seems in the end to have chosen the right man.

N. Y., [Henry Clews, 1908.] c. 50+1062+6 p. pors. pls. map, O. cl., *$3 net.

Twenty years ago the author published "Twenty-eight years in Wall St." See "Weekly Record," P. W., August 18, 1888, [864.] He has now written the history of twenty-two years more, has revised and enlarged his original book and published it under the new title. Mr. Clews entered Wall Street just after the panic of 1857, and his records close with a description of the panic of 1907. Contains portraits of all the great speculators and characteristic sketches of their characters. Lacks an index with dates of personalities and events.

A handsome house in Park Lane, London, is the scene of many remarkable episodes. A Hebrew financier, with offices in Old Broad St., occupies the whole house. It is a house of mystery, entirely unfurnished, excepting the reception room. The true history of the house and its occupant is gradually unfolded, showing that the financier had a bitter wrong to avenge and that he only waited his opportunity. There are two love stories, the two couples becoming more or less involved in the "pauper's" schemes.

An old bachelor farmer and his spinster sister, a rather cross, narrow-minded person, conclude to adopt a boy from an orphan asylum. By a queer chance the message is misunderstood and a girl is sent them. After some deliberation they conclude to keep her and she becomes "Anne of Green Gables." She is a voluble, intelligent, sympathetic little thing, keenly appreciative of the kindness and love that cannot be withheld from her. Both brother and sister adopt her in every sense of the word, and the reader leaves her on the brink of a love affair, well dressed, well educated, and lovely in spite of red hair and freckles. Her quaint remarks on every subject are the attractive feature of the book.

Book treats not only of the means and method of education, but of its end and purpose. Professor Swift shows that the true foundation of all teaching should be a study of the individual, based on a knowledge of the environment and racial influences of each child. Dullness, idleness, even criminality may frequently be traced to wrong teaching, that is, a failure to know and understand the personal equation. Some of the chapters are: Standards of human power; Criminal tendencies of boys: their cause and function; The school and the individual; Some nervous disturbances of development; The psychology of learning; Experimental pedagogy, etc. Author is professor of psychology and pedagogy in Washington University, St. Louis.

The three comrades, Chot, Fleet and Tom, who figured in "Comrades on the farm," are the characters in a new series of adventures. Mr. Ford, on whose farm they worked in the summer, invites them to his home in New York for their Christmas holidays. In getting to the city there is an accident on the railroad and they lose their baggage. In trying to regain it they get innocently mixed up in some criminal doings, and are the means of aiding the police in arresting a gang of smugglers.

A plain statement of the present social upheaval in Russia. The author says he has not written "for the casual reader or for him who draws from this tragic and inspiring situation a mere interest in the chances of the fight or in its melodramatic aspects," but appeals "rather to those seriously interested in the Russian revolutionary movement for the light it sheds on that all-inclusive problem, the future of human society." He spent part of two years in Russia in order to gain a rounded view. He had a personal acquaintance with a majority of the most important leaders of all parties and elements of the Russian nation, many of whom he met in exile in various parts of the world. It is the story of the last four years in Russia, as seen by an intelligent observer. Bibliographical note (4 p.). Index.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JUNE 20, 1908.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

A GRATUITOUS INSULT TO COLLECTORS AND BOOKSELLERS.

IN the current number of a periodical published in New York which asserts itself to be "a magazine for autograph and historical collectors," there is printed a most insulting charge against a reputable body of tradesmen and collectors. The editor in making retraction for an absurd and unfounded statement in his May number says:

"There are some wealthy buyers who judge the merit of the autograph by the price asked. If you ask them $75 for a document of Queen Victoria they will take it gladly, while the real price, $5, would insult them.

"I have no use for such buyers, as I am not in the larceny business. There are a number of booksellers who have accommodated them in the past and will do so again. . . . I do not believe in plundering a newcomer on the principle of a fool being born every minute, and when his eyes are opened, look out for another."

The very violence of this language and the self-glorification of the writer is enough to refute the charge; but, it seems to us, such statements should not be allowed to pass unrebuked. The next paragraph in the same issue of this "magazine for autograph and historical collectors" reveals the reason for the editor's animus. There is a certain gentleman, (who probably does not buy from him,) resident in St. Louis, who has been a large, discriminating and liberal purchaser of literary and historic manuscripts. He possesses many things which are practically beyond price. Most of these things came into his hands unpublished, and it shows the type of man this collector is that he has loaned a number of his manuscripts to the Bibliophile Society of Boston and allowed the society to print them without charge, and in some cases at his own expense. The publication of these manuscripts has been a distinct benefit to students and scholars. Major André's journal kept in this country would have remained in oblivion but for the generosity of this man. A number of interesting letters by Charles Lamb and the journal of Aaron Burr were also given to the world without abbreviation for the first time by him; also, we may instance the correspondence of George Washington with his secretary, Tobias Lear; the letters, (about 150,) of Nathaniel Hawthorne to his wife, an unpublished play by Thoreau, and a number of other things equally valuable. We submit that to speak of such a man as in the following paragraph is a gratuitous and unwarranted insult, and as false as the charge of larceny against "a number of booksellers."

"The millionaire buyer of what we might call the St. Louis type needs a good deal of flattery and attention, and if you catch him in good humor you can sell him a few things at twenty times their value. He wants things that will get his name in the newspapers. He deals in lard or scrap iron and would like a literary reputation. His agents run up prices at auction sales and pay enormous prices for items that they have sometimes put in the sale themselves. Such collectors are a nuisance and a bane to honest collecting."

Surely such writing is a "nuisance and a bane;" but answering a fool according to his folly is proverbially an unprofitable occupation.

No sensible man brags of his honesty; that is taken for granted. Then why should he boast of "making good!"

In talking about your store, don't fail to make it clear why people should patronize your store.

Do more than you promise, and promise just a little less than you know you can do.

COPYRIGHT IN MAPS.

THE following is the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the suit of the Globe Newspaper Company vs. George H. Walker & Co., Justice Day delivering the opinion of the court:

This case is here upon writ of error to the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Massachusetts, upon a question of its jurisdiction to entertain a suit to recover damages for an alleged infringement of the copyright of a map.

The Revised Statutes of the United States, sec. 711, par. 5, give jurisdiction to the courts of the United States in cases arising under the patent right or copyright laws of the United States, exclusive of the courts of the several States. The case is one, therefore, which involves the jurisdiction of a Federal court as such.

The defendants in error, plaintiffs below, partners under the style of George H. Walker & Company, are the owners of a certain copyrighted map, known as the "map of the electric railways of the State of Massachusetts accompanying the report of the railroad commissioners." They allege that they had complied with all of the requirements of the copyright statutes of the United States, and that the defendant, Globe Newspaper Company, well knowing the premises, without the plaintiff's consent, printed and sold a large number of copies of the copyrighted map. And the plaintiffs sought to recover damages in an action at law thus begun for the alleged infringement of the copyright.

The newspaper company demurred upon several grounds, among others:

"1. That the statutes relating to copyrights provide no remedy by a civil action on behalf of the owner of the copyright of a map.

"2. That the declaration confuses two separate and distinct causes of action, neither of which is authorized by the statutes relating to the copyright of maps.

"3. That the declaration contains no allegation that any copy or copies of the alleged infringing map complained of was or were found in the possession of the defendant.

"4. That the declaration contains no allegation that the alleged infringing map complained of, or any copy thereof, was published with the knowledge or consent of the defendant, or any of its officers, or with any intent to evade the statutes for the protection of the copyright for a map."

Upon hearing the demurrer the Circuit Court at its February term, 1904, sustained the same, on the ground that the copyright law gave no such action, and judgment was entered for the newspaper company. 130 Fed. 594. Walker & Company took the case to the Court of Appeals, where the judgment of the Circuit Court was reversed. 140 Fed. 305. That court, holding that the declaration contained a good cause of action for money damages against the newspaper company, the cause was remanded and a new trial had in the Circuit Court, which resulted in a verdict and judgment in the sum of $250 in favor of the Walker Company against the Globe Newspaper Company. At the trial the newspaper company moved that the action be dismissed and a verdict be directed for it, on the ground that the court had no jurisdiction of the action. At the close of the plaintiff's evidence in chief the motion was renewed; the court overruled the motion and the defendant excepted. A like motion and order was made at the close of all the evidence. The court made a certificate that the denial of the motions aforesaid was based in each case solely upon the ground that the cause set forth in the declaration was one, in the opinion of the court, which arose under the copyright laws of the United States, whereof the Circuit Court of the United States had jurisdiction, and, in any event, its action was controlled by the opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals in 140 Fed. 305. Thereupon the case came here upon the question of jurisdiction.

A preliminary objection is made that this court cannot entertain jurisdiction of this writ of error, because the case is not one which may properly come here under section 5 of the Court of Appeals act of 1891, and it is contended that, as the case went to the Circuit Court of Appeals and that court determined it, if the present plaintiff in error wished to save the question of jurisdiction it should have been duly certified to this court from the Court of Appeals. But we are of the opinion that this objection is untenable. The case was taken to the Circuit Court of Appeals by Walker & Company. The judgment of the Circuit Court was in favor of the newspaper company. It had no occasion to take the case to the Court of Appeals. When the Court of Appeals reversed the decision of the Circuit Court and remanded the case for trial, because of its holding that the declaration contained a cause of action in favor of Walker & Company, the Circuit Court was bound by, and of course followed, the decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals.

The newspaper company, in various forms, objected to the jurisdiction of the court as a court of the United States, because there was no such action under the copyright law as was asserted in the declaration filed against it. Its objection to the jurisdiction was overruled. It saved the question in various ways and brought it here upon an adequate certificate, raising solely the question of jurisdiction. We think we have jurisdiction of the case.

Certain propositions arising under the copyright laws are settled by the decisions of this court beyond the necessity of further discussion. In this country the right of an author to multiply copies of books, maps, etc., after publication, is the creation of the Federal statutes. These statutes did not provide for the continuation of the common law right, but, under constitutional authority, created a new right. This was directly held in the case in this court of Wheaton et al. v. Peters et al., 8 Pet. 590. That case has frequently been followed since, and is directly approved of in subsequent cases in this court. Bobbs-Merrill Co. v. Macy & Co., just decided, and the previous cases from this court therein cited.

The question in this case, therefore, is, whether in the absence of a statute to that effect, there is a common law right of action because of the right of property created by the statute to recover money damages against infringers of a copyright. That there is no express statutory provision giving such right of action is conceded. The Circuit Court (130 Fed. 594) was of the opinion that the question was determined adversely to plaintiffs below by the well-known case of Wheaton v. Peters, 8 Pet. supra. In that case the court held that there could be no relief at common law in an action brought for the infringement of the copyright of Wheaton's reports, because of the publication, since the passage of the copyright act, of condensed reports of cases decided in the Supreme Court of the United States. It was held that there was no common law of the United States, and that for common law rights this court looked to the State in which the controversy originated, and the court held that there was no common law right in Pennsylvania to a perpetual copyright. And, further, held that Congress, by the copyright act of 1790, instead of sanctioning an existing right, created a new one, and said (p. 662) that "If the right of the complainant can be sustained, it must be sustained under the acts of Congress." The judgment of the court below was reversed, and the cause remanded to the Circuit Court with directions to direct an issue of fact to be examined and tried by a jury as to whether Wheaton, the author, or other person as proprietor, had complied with the requirements of the copyright act of the United States of May 31, 1790.

While we agree that the case did not necessarily decide the point made in the present case, yet the reasoning and the decree of the court decidedly favor the conclusion that Congress not only created a new right in the copyright statute, but that the remedies therein given are the only ones open to those seeking the benefit of the statutory right thereby created.

The Circuit Court of Appeals, conceding the effect of the decision in Wheaton v. Peters, supra, as to the origin of property in copyright, says:

"The property right being established, the common law remedies attach, whether the right arises out of the common law or under a statute, unless there is something in the statute to the contrary."

And in support of this doctrine reliance is had on Beckford v. Hood, 7 T. R. 620. That was an action on the case to recover damages for the publication of the plaintiff's book, "Thoughts upon Hunting." Neither the original nor any subsequent editions were entered in Stationers' Hall, as required by the statute. The defendant published the same work under title "Thoughts upon Hare and Fox Hunting," with plaintiff's name upon the title page.

Lord Kenyon, C.J., in the opinion delivered by him, held that the statute, 8 Anne, chap. 9, vested in authors for the periods named in the act the sole right and liberty of printing, etc., and the statute, having vested the right in the author, the common law gave the remedy by action on the case. "Of this," says Lord Kenyon, p. 627, "there could have been no doubt made if the statute had stopped there. But it has been argued that as the statute in the same clause that creates the right has prescribed a particular remedy, that and no other can be resorted to. And if such appeared to have been the intention of the legislature, I should have subscribed to it, however inadequate it might be thought," and, concluding his opinion, says:

"On the fair construction of this act, therefore, I think it vests the right of property in authors of literary works for the times therein limited, and that consequently the common law remedy attaches if no other be specifically given by the act, and I cannot consider the action given to a common informer for the penalties which might be preoccupied by another as a remedy to the party grieved within the meaning of the act."

The gist of this decision is that the statute gave the right of exclusive publication of copies, and gave the proprietor of the copyright no remedy; hence the common law supplied one.

As we shall have occasion to see, the American copyright act does give special remedies to the owner of a copyright of maps. Inadequate it may be to fully protect the property in the copyright, yet such as Congress has seen fit to give, and which it, not the courts, have power to enlarge by amendment of the statutes.

And we think an inspection of the copyright statute indicates that the purpose of Congress was not only to create the rights granted in the statute, but also to create the specific remedies by which alone such rights may be enforced. The general rule applicable in such cases was stated in Pollard v. Bailey, 20 Wall. 520:

"A general liability created by statute, without a remedy, may be enforced by an appropriate common law action, but where the provision for the liability is coupled with the provision for a special remedy that remedy and that alone, must be employed."

Pollard v. Bailey has been many times cited with approval and followed in this court. In Middleton Nat'l Bank v. Toledo, Ann Arbor & Northern Michigan R. R., 197 U. S. 394, the principle was applied in an action brought outside the State of Ohio to recover the stockholders' liability given by the statutes of that State, and it was held that the action could not be maintained; that the statutory method providing for the enforcement of the right in the courts of the State must be followed. Mr. Justice Peckham, speaking for the court, said:

"The statute, under such circumstances, may be said to so far provide for the liability and to create the remedy as to make it necessary to follow its provisions and to conform to the procedure provided for therein. See Pollard v. Bailey, 20 Wall. 520, 526; Fourth Nat'l Bank v. Franklyn, 120 U. S. 747, 756; Evans v. Nellis, 187 U. S. 271."

Looking to the copyright statutes, we find a comprehensive system of rights and remedies provided. Section 4952 provides that the author, inventor, designer or proprietor of any book, map, etc., upon complying with the provisions of this section, "shall have the sole liberty of printing, reprinting, publishing, completing, copying, executing, finishing and vending the same." This is the section creating the right.

Section 4963 provides for a penalty of $100 for falsely inserting or impressing a copyright notice where no copyright has been obtained. The penalty in this section is recoverable, one-half for the person suing for the same, and one-half to the use of the United States; and the Circuit Courts of the United States sitting in equity are authorized to enjoin the issuing, publishing or selling of articles marked or imported in violation of the copyright laws of the United States.

By section 4964 it is provided, as to books, that those who print, publish, dramatize, translate or import the same, without the consent of the proprietor of the copyright, signed in the presence of two witnesses, or who knowing the same to be so printed, published, dramatized and translated or imported, shall sell, or expose to sale any copies of such article, shall forfeit every copy thereof to the proprietor of the copyright, and shall also forfeit and pay such damages as may be recovered in a civil action by the proprietor of the copyright in any court of competent jurisdiction. Here is a specific remedy given to recover damages for books wrongfully printed or published, etc., in violation of the act. While Congress conferred this action to protect copyrighted books, for some reason it does not include the holders of copyrighted maps within its provisions.

Section 4965 relates to the owners of copyrights on maps, charts, etc., and provides for the forfeiture of plates and copies, and for the recovery of money penalties in certain cases, one-half of the penalty to go to the proprietor of the copyright, the other half to the use of the United States.

Section 4966 gives remedies for damages against those wrongfully performing or representing a dramatic or musical composition, in public, such damages to be assessed at such sum, not less than $100 for the first and $50 for every subsequent performance, as to the court may seem just, and such offending persons are declared guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, liable to imprisonment not exceeding one year; or an injunction may be granted upon hearing, after notice to the defendant, by any Circuit Court of the United States.

Section 4967 gives an action for damages for printing or publishing any manuscript without the consent of the author or proprietor.

Section 4970 provides for injunctions in copyright cases in the Circuit and District Courts of the United States, by bill in equity, to prevent the violation of any right secured by the laws respecting copyrights, according to the course and principles of courts of equity, on such terms as the court may deem reasonable.

We think these statutes, taken together, indicate the purpose of Congress to provide a system of remedies to enforce the rights which have been granted to those who shall avail themselves of the statutes of the United States, and, in accordance therewith, become the owners of the exclusive right for a limited term to publish and multiply the copyrighted work.

To the owner of a copyright on a map is given, under section 4965, forfeiture of plates and sheets, and one-half the penalty of $1 for every sheet found in the defendant's possession; under section 4970, the right to proceed by injunction. It thus appears that Congress has prescribed the remedies it intends to give, this being true, "however inadequate," as Lord Kenyon said in Beckford v. Hood, supra, "no others can be resorted to."

We, therefore, think the Circuit Court erred in holding that it had jurisdiction of this action by virtue of the laws of the United States.

The judgment of the Circuit Court is reversed and the cause remanded to that court, with directions to dismiss the action for want of jurisdiction. Reversed.

ADVERTISING A BOOKSTORE.

BY R. E. SHERWOOD.

THE manager or proprietor of any business who is generally "satisfied with present arrangements," never, as a rule, makes much of a success in his line; he belongs to that class of miscalled business men who are at their places of business promptly each morning, open the store, stay all day, count up whatever cash comes their way, close up, go home and call that being in "business." No attempt made to increase the volume of business; nothing done to attract new trade; the same old rut. He belongs to that class of booksellers who remind me of that verse in the Bible which ends "the same yesterday, to-day and forever."

Every retail dealer loses at least ten per cent. of his regular trade annually from causes such as removal, death, etc.; hence, it becomes absolutely necessary that he gets at least fifteen to twenty per cent. of new trade if he expects his business to be built up to any extent. This result cannot be achieved by being simply "in business."

In the matter of advertising, the turning to your personal account of topics and incidents that are in the public eye get the most potent results, the little ones being sometimes of more value than the big ones. For example, when the price of coal was very high in 1902 on account of the great strike of the same year, we placed two scuttles of coal in the window, offering a small piece gratis to each customer. Did I expect each customer to take advantage of our offer? Certainly not. Did the offer create talk? Certainly it did, and my point was gained.

Simeon Ford says it's bad for a man to get a reputation for being humorous, for the reason that the public expects him to be funny on all occasions, whether he feels that way or not. In some, but not all respects, this is true; but don't let that deter you from getting a reputation for "doing things" in the book business. Mark Twain declares "difference of opinion makes horse races." When Ellis Parker Butler's "Great American Pie Company" was published, we dressed our window with a number of copies of the book and an equal number of pieces of pie—a piece of pie free with each copy. I was reasonably certain that but few purchasers would accept the souvenir, and as I did not care to "carry over" any pie, I advertised that we would give away pie free between five and six P.M. Need I say that at the specified hour I had a "pie line" of newsboys, messengers and others in front of my door long enough and hungry enough to consume the entire daily output of seven bakeries. I only had one hundred pieces of pie, but I managed to keep that line in front of my door long enough to have one thousand people ask what was up. To prove the value of the advertisement, numbers of my customers still ask when I am going to give away some more pie.

The Saturday preceding last Palm Sunday we advertised that we would "exhibit in our store a grand collection of over 500 palms, no two alike." When a visitor asked to see the "palm show" he was told that the palm of every person then present was differently constructed from the others. The joke was apparent, but not a single person took umbrage. As a matter of fact, this class of advertising has no specific bearing on the class of merchandise handled, and if used in connection with the advertising of garments, woollens, or grades of merchandise where quality is to be considered, would be detrimental. In books, however, use all the "red paint" possible, as no such question as inferior quality can arise in the mind of the purchaser, for the reason that where a book is published in one edition, at one price, its make-up is the same, no matter by whom it is offered, or in what manner it is advertised.

The using of these unusual methods, however, have the faculty of attaining distinction for your business.

While coming down to business one morning this week, I noticed a sign which read "Big Sale of Fire Works"—for July 4th. The reading of this suggests that I might have a "sale of fire works" for July 4th. Can you work it out? I can't tell you how through these columns this week, but will subsequent to the above date; also of the souvenirs (5000 of them) that I am going to give away on that date, the entire outlay amounting to $3.50.

In conclusion, just a suggestion of an ad. to A. C. McClurg & Co., for the "Prisoners of Chance." The Chicago National League Baseball Club is first in the pennant race. A man by the name of Chance is captain and manager. Aren't all the other teams in the race "Prisoners of Chance?" McClurg, get your good friend cartoonist, McCutcheon, busy, and say below the cartoon: "This cartoon represents the title of the best-selling romance of to-day. For the first one hundred correct answers received prior to — we will give a copy of the book free." I'll wager that it will increase the output more than that circular to the trade in which you ask the dealer to "load up" and push the sale of an article on which his gross profit is 16½ per cent., (if he sell them all.)

Query: What is the finish of a merchant who "loads up" on and pushes that branch of merchandise on which his gross profit is 16½ per cent., when his running or total expense amounts to 25 per cent.?

Let us have all books published and sold at a fixed price, with a sufficient discount to enable the retailer to make a living profit.

TO CONTINUE FIGHT FOR FREE PAPER.

THE directors of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association at a meeting held in New York City last week decided to continue the fight for the placing of pulp and printing paper on the free list. It authorized the president to engage the services of John Norris, who has resigned from the New York Times, for a period of two years, to promote the aims of the association in the matter of news print paper.

ANNUAL CONVENTION OF THE ENGLISH BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE Associated Booksellers of Great Britain and Ireland held their annual meeting on May 22 to 25 in the Midland Hotel, Manchester, H. W. Keay, the president of the Association, in the chair. In the course of his address Mr. Keay, referring to the statement made by Mr. Dent that The Times Book Club was prepared to sign the net book agreement called the attention of the Association to the fact that he had as yet nothing authoritative to say on the subject. He hoped, however, that the managers of the club had recognized that it would pay them better to live at peace with their neighbors rather than still to remain in conflict.

As to the demand of the libraries to receive a discount, Mr. Keay said that the officers of the Association had been able to show the libraries a fact which rather surprised them—that three booksellers ordered more copies of certain books than all the libraries put together. There was also this very important point: The bookseller who purchased net books for stock undertook thereby a certain risk. The libraries took no risk whatever, and, therefore, it was quite clear that the bookseller was entitled to better terms than the library, and it could not be said that the Library Association had made out any case for the better terms they demanded. Of course there was the threat that the libraries would combine and establish their own Library Supply Company. He would like, however, to remind those librarians at any rate who were serving under borough councils that it was not at all right that public officials should form a trade association. Such action opened the door to great abuses, and might very well result in something even worse than the Mile End scandals.

The sevenpenny copyright book had caused the Council much anxiety. It was no doubt a good thing that cheap books should be multiplied. At the same time this was no justification for the issue of such cheap editions of high-priced books sometimes in less than six months. The authors ought not to be tempted by the money they receive for these cheap editions to allow their issue under these unfair conditions. At any rate, booksellers should only deal with the publishers on the clear understanding that if a cheap edition was issued they had a right to return all unsold copies at the higher price. He was sure that authors would suffer if cheap editions were issued too soon. It was, of course, a different matter to issue the cheaper editions when the higher priced edition had had its proper run.

Mr. Keay next touched upon a matter in which he feared it was possible that all might not agree with him. But in looking ahead and to the future of the net book system, he felt that there was great danger lest the system insured them too high a profit. They might think such a view absurd, particularly as coming from one who had retired from the trade. At the same time, he felt very strongly that there was very great danger, lest the net system might be imperilled, if only in an indirect fashion. They had already had cases which seriously raised the question. Contracts had been taken for both subject and net books on terms which, while nominally applying only to the subject books, really meant giving indirectly a discount on the net books. He could only urge on all booksellers not to handle such contracts on such terms. Subject books and net books must always be kept distinct. It was a most important matter, and if any member of the trade yielded the net system was doomed. As regarded the different terms granted to different firms, he fully recognized that the large purchaser should have some benefit, but they must stand firm for the principle that every man who bought the same number of books should have the same terms. He hoped that their next annual meeting would find them as strong and as united as they were to-day, and then they would indeed be stronger. For they were working for a just cause, to obtain a living profit for their work, and therefore they might continue their work with good heart and confident hope in the future.

The following schedule was presented to show the steady progress of the net system:

	NET Subject. Books.	Total Pub. Price. £ s. d.		NET Books.	Total Pub. Price. £ s. d.
1901.....	5675	1211 8 7		2322	983 3 4
1902.....	6091	1239 10 11½		3050	1247 15 10½
1903.....	5108	951 6 10½		3581	1567 11 3
1904.....	5382	994 5 11		4303	1550 19 5
1905.....	5621	847 18 6½		4617	1480 12 8
1906.....	5843	814 2 1		5136	1646 18 7
1907.....	4926	872 17 5½		5426	1643 14 0

Mr. Keay was re-elected president; the vice-presidents, Messrs. Hanson and F. Denny; the hon. treasurer, Calder Turner, and the hon. secretary, Edwin Pearce, were also re-elected.

AMERICAN POST-CARD ASSOCIATION.

THE AMERICAN POST-CARD ASSOCIATION has been formed in Chicago for mutual protection and to deal with many problems that confront the post-card trade. As implied by the name, it is proposed to make the new association national in its scope, though for the present, at least, its membership will probably be confined more especially to the Middle West. The new association also, it is expected, will co-operate with the Post-Card Importers, Manufacturers and Publishers' Protective Association, which was formed last February in New York City, and which is composed almost wholly of firms from this city.

The officers of the new association are as follows: President, L. D. Bender, of Gurtner & Bender; vice-president, H. G. Zimmerman, of H. G. Zimmerman & Co., and treasurer, Paul Shuling, of The Shuling Company. The Executive Committee is made up of the following members: Charles Ashton, of The Simplicity Company; Alfred Holzman, of the Alfred Holzman Company; Philip Schmidt, of P. Schmidt & Co., and Richard Leffman, of the Chicago Post-Card Company. The temporary secretary is Harry M. Eastman.

At the preliminary meeting remarks favoring organization and pointing out the varied usefulness of the new association were made. Among other things that were discussed was the matter of the censorship of post-cards, or the establishing of some standard by which manufacturers can guarantee cards to be immune from prosecution, the matter of credits and the control of salesmen.

THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS.

THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS has just published an interesting "Brief Account of the University Press at Oxford," by Falconer Madan, well known as the sub-librarian of the Bodleian for upwards of a quarter of a century. The Oxford University Press, according to Mr. Madan, is not only "the greatest provincial press in England," but "one which can boast continuity from Elizabethan days, and can look far further back to a time when the art was unknown in London and to a book bearing a date either anterior to Caxton's first work at Westminster, or second only to that."

Mr. Madan has divided his essay into three parts—the first giving the history of the press; the second noting some special incidents and curiosities; the third a chart of printing at Oxford, in which the effect of the Civil War, the Tractarian Movement, and the First University Commission can be clearly traced.

The earliest Oxford Presses, Mr. Madan points out, where the Fifteenth Century Press—of which the first book printed at Oxford, the Oxford Jerome, bears the unmistakable date of 1468, though this is generally supposed to be a mistake for 1478—which printed books up to 1487.

The Second Press was only at work for three years—1517-20. Indeed, all the provincial presses of the first half of the sixteenth century were similarly short lived, and on May 4, 1556, the Charter of the Stationers' Company suppressed all provincial presses except those at Oxford or Cambridge. In 1585 the University lent £100 to Joseph Barnes, an Oxford bookseller, to establish a press, and in 1586 the first Greek book was printed. In the next period, 1669 to 1713, the great name is Dr. Fell, Dean of Christ Church, (the hero of the well-known rhyme,) who in 1667 established a regular type foundry at Oxford, and in 1669 installed the Press in the new Sheldonian Theatre, where it remained till it was moved to the new printing house named after Lord Clarendon, from the profits of whose "History of the Rebellion" the cost was chiefly defrayed.

In 1830 the Press moved to its new and present premises in Walton Street, where we may note that the printing machines were first driven by steam in 1840. Modern stereotyping was first used in 1860, electrotyping three years later, and photography for illustrations in 1885.

Among many other interesting facts, Mr. Madan notes that the remarkable development of the Bible Press of late years may best be marked by the fact that in 1870 twenty-six editions of the Bible were on sale, while last year the number was ninety-eight. In 1875, a year after Mr. Frowde was appointed publisher, the sale of the Bible was 500,000 copies; in 1905 the sale was 1,120,000. Of the smallest Bible the sales from 1874 to 1907 have been over a million and a half.

The pamphlet written at the request of Mr. Henry Frowde has special interest in that it may be said to commemorate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the union of the Bible and Learned Presses, which, formerly kept separate, were united under the management of Mr. Horace Hart, the present Controller of the Press, in 1883. The text is illustrated with twenty-seven plates.

REDUCED RATES TO NEW YORK FOR MERCHANTS.

On July 25-29, inclusive, and again on August 15-19, inclusive, merchants' rates will be in effect to New York City from the territory of the Central Passenger Association. This announcement is made by The Merchants' Association of New York, on whose application the concession is authorized. The special rate will be a fare and one-half for the round trip, granted under the certificate plan. The return limit will be 30 days, as heretofore.

Central Passenger Association railroads traverse territory roughly described as follows: Points west of (but not including) Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Suspension Bridge and Salamanca, N. Y.; Pittsburg and Allegheny, Pa.; Bellaire and Marietta, O.; Wheeling, Charleston and Huntington, W. Va.; and points on and north of the Ohio River and east of the Mississippi River, and south of a line from Keokuk, Iowa, to Chicago, Ill., including Cincinnati, Louisville, all towns in Kentucky on the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway, St. Louis, Keokuk, Chicago, Southern Peninsular of Michigan, and Canadian towns on the Michigan Central Railroad and Wabash Railroad.

During the coming summer season merchants' rates to New York will be effective from points in the State of Vermont reached by the Rutland Railroad and the Delaware & Hudson Railroad, and in the State of Massachusetts from towns and cities on the line of the Boston & Albany Railroad west of, but not including, Springfield, and the North Adams Division. These rates, which will be in effect on August 15-19, inclusive, and August 29 to September 2, inclusive, with a 15-day return limit, have been arranged by the Merchants' Association of New York.

The special fare will be the same as that applying from other sections of the country, namely, a fare and one-half for the round trip, effective under the certificate plan.

The association will, as heretofore, issue a circular giving full information as to the concession, this circular to be forwarded to the retail merchants in the territory affected. Copies of it will also be supplied to resident members on request.

RECLAM'S FORTIETH ANNIVERSARY.

THE firm of Philipp Reclam, Jr., of Leipzig, the well-known pioneer of inexpensive literature, celebrated its fortieth anniversary by issuing its 5000th volume—Ernst's novel, "Vom Strande des Lebens." The history of the activity of this firm is the history of all epoch-making endeavors—the recognition of a real need of the times, indefatigable energy and unshakeable optimism directed toward achieving results in the face of contempt, indifference and concealed as well as open hostility. The founder of the firm, Antoine Philippe Reclam, was the descendant of an ancient Savoyard family that for upwards of 150 years had its family seat in Geneva, whose members owing to the revocation of the edict of Nantes were obliged to emigrate and settled in Germany and Ireland. Philipp Reclam's family formed one of the colony of French refugees in Berlin. In 1867, with but modest pecuniary means, the older Reclam and his son Hans Heinrich inaugurated his now famous Universal Bibliothek with the issue of "Goethe's Faust, Erster Theil." At first the entire booktrade, as well as the press, paid but scant attention to Reclam's publications—in many cases it even antagonized them, notwithstanding the fact that it was Reclam's ambition to issue only perfect and complete texts and the best translations obtainable. It was not until the early seventies of the nineteenth century that the press took any notice at all of Reclam's little books with their hated salmon-colored covers, sold at about five cents for the single number in paper covers and fifteen cents bound in cloth. In time the public came to appreciate the worth of these "insignificant booklets," and then fortune smiled upon the enterprise which would long before have been abandoned by a less determined character than the elder Reclam proved himself to be.

By degrees the Universal Bibliothek was broadened in every department of literature to justify its title. In numerous cases works were freshly edited and translated, and in some cases the edition in this collection is the only definite or even available one. Besides the Universal Bibliothek the firm also publishes an excellent series of the classics and dictionaries, and since 1896 has published a high class illustrated weekly under the title of Reclam's Universum.

The business, since the death of the founder on January 5, 1896, has been conducted by his son, Hans Heinrich Reclam, who is ably assisted by his sons, Dr. Ernest Reclam and Hans Emil Reclam. The output of the firm requires fifty-six power presses that are frequently kept running night and day to keep up with the demand for these once so despised publications.

The employees of the firm united in presenting to their chief bronze busts of the two founders of the firm and a set of resolutions, and the trade presented the firm with an album containing congratulations from publishers and booksellers throughout Germany. The firm presented to its employees an édition de luxe of the 5000th issue and a sum of money.

WARNING TO THE TRADE AGAINST A BOOK THIEF.

THE following books were stolen from my residence in Brooklyn, N. Y., between May 8 and May 30:

Fry's Pantographia, or all the known alphabets, London, 1799, full calf.
Constitution and Laws of the Chickasaw Nation. Parsons, Kan., 1899. Thick 8vo, sheep.
Chikasha Okla i Cunstitushun, etc. n. p. 1873. 8vo, pp. 350, green cloth.
 Trumbull's Memorial History of Hartford Co., Conn. Vol. 1 only. Boston, 1886. 4to, cloth.
 McLear's Life of James Evans, inventor of the syllabus system of the Cree language. Toronto (1890). 12mo, cloth.

Also, half a dozen or more other books relating to the Indians. I will consider it a favor if any bookseller who may have purchased any of the above or to whom they may be offered will notify me promptly at my expense. WILBERFORCE EAMES.

NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY—Lenox branch,
 FIFTH AVENUE AND 70TH STREET.

A SWINDLER ABROAD.

GEORGE CARY EGGLESTON warns the public against a young man whose identity he is unable to discover, but who has victimized several literary gentlewomen by falsely representing himself as a son of his, "suddenly caught short of ready money away from home," and asking for loans or the cashing of worthless checks. Whoever he may be, the man is simply a swindler plying his trade, and Mr. Eggleston shall be grateful to any person who shall arrest him and notify him. In that event Mr. Eggleston will prosecute him to the limit of the law.

ENGLISH BOOKS IN DEMAND IN MAY.

THE London Book Monthly reports the following as having been in greatest demand in England during May:

Scarlet Runner, by C. N. and A. M. Williamson.

The Spanish Jade, by Maurice Hewlett.

A Man of Genius, by M. P. Willcocks.

Queen Victoria as I Knew Her, by Sir Theodore Martin.

The Cradle of the Deep, by Sir Frederick Treves.

Life and Letters of Herbert Spencer, by David Duncan.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE death of Mrs. Owen Wister, last week, in Philadelphia, in her seventy-second year, recalls the fact that she was the daughter of Frances Anne Kemble, the beautiful and amiable "Fanny Kemble" of our grandfather's playgoing days, who herself was descended from a stock of famous actors and actresses, including Charles Kemble, Ellen Tree, Sarah Siddons, John Philip Kemble and Elizabeth Whitlock. Fanny Kemble retired early from the stage and in 1834 married Pierce Butler in Philadelphia. For many of her later years she dwelt at Lenox, Mass., in great esteem. She wrote books and was renowned as a Shakespearean reader. She was a close friend of Edward FitzGerald, and a volume of "Old Fitz's" letters to her is treasured by every admirer of the translator of Omar. Besides her relationship to the great Kemble family, Mrs. Wister was connected by marriage with the Furnesses of Philadelphia, as her sister-in-law is Mrs. Annis Lee Wister, famed as a translator of German romance, and sister of Dr. Horace Howard Furness, the editor of the Variorum Shakespeare. But probably the distinguished old lady who has just died was proud, most of all, of her son, Owen, who holds a foremost place among American novelists, and is ably upholding the traditions of supremacy in art to which he was born.

OBITUARY NOTES.

THE REV. DR. GEORGE EDMANDS MERRILL, president of Colgate University since 1899, died at Hamilton, N. Y., June 11. Dr. Merrill was born at Charlestown, Mass., December 19, 1846. He was graduated from Harvard in 1864 and from Newton Theological Institution in 1872. After filling the pulpits of Baptist churches in Springfield, Salem and Newton, Mass., and in Colorado Springs, he was elected sixth president of Colgate University. He was the author of "The Story of the Manuscripts," "Crusaders and Captives," "The Reasonable Christ" and "The Parchments of Faith." He wrote the commentary on "The Song of Solomon" in "The American Commentary on the Old Testament."

COLONEL JOHN FREDERICK FINERTY, the well-known journalist, died in Chicago, June 10. He was born in Galway, Ireland, September 10, 1846, and came to this country in 1864. He joined the Federal army and served in the war between the states until 1866. After the war he became a reporter and later city editor of the Chicago Republican, now the Inter Ocean, which position he held until 1875. From 1876 to 1882 Colonel Finerty was correspondent for the Chicago Times, in the Indian wars, being attached to the troops under General Miles. In 1882, after the close of the Indian wars, he entered politics, and was elected to Congress. He was the author of "Warpath and Bivouac," "Ireland in Pictures" and "People's History of Ireland," besides numerous papers on questions of moment to the Irish people.

WILLIAM LEETE STONE, SR., historian and journalist, died June 11 at Mt. Vernon, N. Y. Mr. Stone, who was born in New York City, April 4, 1835, was a descendant of William Leete, a Colonial Governor of Connecticut, who hid the regicides Goff and Whalley. His father, Colonel William L. Stone, was the editor of The New York Commercial Advertiser from 1822 until the time of his death in 1844, and his granduncle was the Rev. Francis Wayland, a president of Brown University. Mr. Stone entered Brown University in 1853. After his graduation, in 1858, he spent some time in Germany translating historic journals. After completing a course in the Albany Law School, Mr. Stone practiced in Saratoga until 1863, in the mean time finishing his father's work, "Life and Times of Sir William Johnson." Mr. Stone returned to New York in 1869, and was city editor of The Journal of Commerce for several years. Besides being his father's literary executor, Mr. Stone wrote "Burgoyne's Campaign," "St. Leger's Expedition," "History of New York City" and other works of historical value, chiefly on the Revolutionary War. In 1876 he was appointed centennial historian for the State of New York. Mayor Strong appointed him a member of a commission to collect and publish the old Municipal Records and Laws of New Amsterdam.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

CATALOGUES OF NEW AND SECOND-HAND BOOKS.

George Gregory, 5 Argyle Street, Bath, Eng., has just brought out his Bath Book Catalogue and Report, Nos. 183-184. It catalogues among other rarities Mrs. R. B. Sheridan's (E. A. Linley) Common-place Book, containing 92 original poems, etc., by Richard Brinsley Sheridan, his wife, and others, including three by David Garrick, six by Richard Fitzpatrick, three by Dr. Smollett, etc. The catalogue also includes a large selection of topography, arranged under counties, some Sheraton and Chippendale book-cases, and a remarkable writing cabinet called "The Four Sisters' Cabinet." (1705 titles.)

C. Lang & Co., Via Bocca di Leone, 13, Rome, Manuscripts and printed books on medicine, astronomy, astrology, natural sciences, philosophy, mathematics, technology, etc. (No. 3, 822 titles;) also, Manuscripts and early printed books. (Nos. 4, 5, 273 titles.)

Maggs Bros., 109 Strand, London, W. C., Portraits and decorative engravings principally by famous English and French artists of the 18th century and fine examples of masters of etching from Dürer to Seymour Haden. (No. 240, 906 titles.)

Hugo Streisand, Berlin W. 50, German literature and translations, including many items not mentioned by Gcedeke, Hayn, Kayser and others. Pt. 2, Hei to Petzet. (No. 24, 1344 titles.)

BUSINESS NOTES.

CHARLESTON, W. VA.—The Kanawha Book Store has sold out and will turn over proceeds of sale to J. N. Carnes as trustee for creditors. They expect to pay all claims in full.

JERSEY CITY, N. J.—The Connoisseur's Press, which has just entered the publishing field, was established last November by J. Curran, formerly owner of The Iconoclast, published at Scotland Neck, N. C. Associated with Mr. Curran is M. McCarthy. The office of the concern is at 76 Grand Street.

NEW YORK CITY.—A meeting of the creditors of Robert Grier Cooke, Inc., will be held one June 25, at 3 P.M., at the office of N. A. Prentiss, referee in bankruptcy, No. 120 Broadway, to prove the claims of the creditors and appoint a trustee.

NEW YORK CITY.—Henry Malkan, bookseller and importer, now located at 18 Broadway, will remove to 42 Broadway about August 1. The new quarters, containing over 7000 square feet, will make one of the largest retail bookstores in New York.

PIEDMONT, W. VA.—The book and stationery store of Joseph H. Nau was destroyed by fire a week ago. The loss is said to have been covered by insurance.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—The new Paul Elder Building, at the northwest corner of Grant Avenue and Stockton Place, a handsome five-story edifice of pressed brick, is soon to be occupied by Paul Elder, the publisher.

TROY, N. Y.—We are informed that the report that The Pafraets Book Co. "will go into voluntary bankruptcy" is an error. It appears that the officers of the company have merely decided to go into voluntary liquidation. The assets of the concern, according to their attorney, Andrew P. McKean, are ample to pay general creditors in full and no receivership or bankruptcy proceedings will be necessary.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

WE regret to note the death, on May 27, at Yonkers, N. Y., of Louie Tillman Carson, the wife of Samuel Carson, the well-known representative of G. P. Putnam's Sons.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY published last week two books by two well-known authors—"The Lady in the Car," by William Le Queux, and "Captain Spink and Other Sea Comedies," by Morley Roberts.

THE COCHRANE PUBLISHING Co., Tribune Building, New York City, will publish on July 1 a work entitled "What is Man? or, Creationism vs. Evolutionism," by Dr. Judson D. Burns, a refutation of the theories of Charles Darwin, Huxley and Spencer.

BRENTANO's have just ready a story entitled "The Mystery of the Yellow Room," which describes the extraordinary adventures and revelations of a French journalist-detective. The book has caused quite a sensation in Paris, and already has been in such demand in this country as to call for two editions in advance of publication.

THE C. M. CLARK PUBLISHING Co., Boston, have nearly ready a novel entitled "The Devil Worshippers," by Frederick A. Ray, author of "The Maid of Mohawk," the principal incident in which is the Black Mass. Mr. Ray takes St. Pierre, Martinique, as the scene of his story, and the recent period of Mont Pelée's activity as its time.

W. H. PARKER, 1086 Chapel Street, New Haven, Conn., has just brought out a set of six post-cards reproducing in color scarce engravings of Yale College and New Haven one hundred years ago. While the sale of these cards will be mainly local, they will nevertheless appeal to every Yale graduate wherever he may now reside.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have in preparation a small volume called "Potted Fiction," selected by John Kendrick Bangs "from among the world's quickest sellers, put up in slices for hurried readers, and containing all the fiction news that's fit to print." There will be seven pieces of "canned literature" in the volume, by such authors as E. Filips Dobenheim, A. Cowan Watson, Hellinor Gryn, etc.

THE EXCELSIOR PUBLISHING HOUSE, (McKeon & Schofield,) New York City, have just brought out "Drummer's Yarns and Funny Jokes, 16th Crop, original and selected American humor, with many laughable illustrations," by "One of the Craft," (R. J. Schofield.) The collection, though it includes some that are well worn, is unusually good, and will be helpful to the "craft" in bridging over hard places when canvassing for orders.

THE FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have just brought out a work entitled "Long Life and How to Attain It," by Dr. Pearce Kintzing, of Baltimore, who gives simple, sane, practical advice by which the every-day man and woman may ward off disease, preserve health and prolong life. Though written primarily for the general reader, the scientific basis upon which the book is prepared will commend it to the attention of the physician as well.

CASSELL & COMPANY will bring out during the summer "The Lost Millionaire," the story of a kidnapping undertaken for a rather unusual purpose, by Lillias Campbell Davidson, author of "The Great Dynover Pearl Case," etc., and "Her Faithful Knight," by W. Bourne Cooke, author of "The Horned Owl," etc., a story of Nottingham and Leicester between the years 1641 and 1645. They have just ready Parts 3 to 7 of their interesting serial, "Women of All Nations."

HARPER & BROTHERS have just ready a work on "The Technique of the Novel, the elements of the art, their evolution and present use," by Charles F. Horne, assistant professor of English in the College of the City of New York; also, "Quicksteps Through Scandinavia, with a retreat from Moscow," by S. G. Bayne, author of "An Irish Jaunting Car," etc., describing just the sort of thing that the average person really likes to know of strange countries—especially when the first side to be seen is the funny side.

THE JOHN LANE COMPANY, New York, will bring out shortly the first volume in their collected edition of the works of Anatole France, the great French novelist. All his imaginative works and also his monumental study of Joan of Arc are included. The series will appear under the general editorship of Frederic Chapman. In form the books will not be the ordinary twelvemo in which novels are commonly issued, but will be octavo, printed on a special paper with large margins and bound in red and gold.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish on July 6 a work entitled "The Justice of the Mexican War," by Major Charles H. Owen, which is described as "a review of the causes and results of the war, with a view to distinguishing evidence from opinion and evidence." Besides advancing and championing convictions on the question named in its title, this book is a criticism, full of point and vigor, of the methods of many historians of name and fame. They will bring out at the same time a story of Sicilian life entitled "Marotz," by John Ayscough.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have undertaken the American publication of W. S. Holdsworth's "A History of English Law," of which Methuen & Co. published the first volume in London several years ago. This book was devoted to the history of the courts and their jurisdiction at successive periods. The second volume will be divided into two parts, of which the first will be "Anglo-Saxon Antiquities." The second part will contain "The Rules of Law," with chapters on land law, crime and tort, contract, succession to chattels, persons and procedure and pleading. The projected two volumes of the first plan will be extended to three or four.

THE FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have just ready a series of papers prepared by the late Dwight L. Moody for the Ladies' Home Journal, under the title of "The Fulness of the Gospel," edited by his son, W. R. Moody. The papers state in simple popular form the Bible teaching on some of the fundamental doctrines of the Christian faith. They have also just ready "Real Letters to Real Boys," by Charles Keen Taylor, who has been for many years a teacher of boys, whose letters will be found helpful, fascinating and instructive; also, the volume on St. Matthew, by the Rev. David Smith, in the Westminster New Testament, a series of commentaries by modern scholars, edited by the Rev. Dr. A. E. Garnie. They have in preparation the fourth annual issue of Martha Tarbell's "Teacher's Guide to the International Sunday-school Lessons," formerly published by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish next week "The Wonderful House that Jack Has," by Columbus N. Millard, Supervisor of Grammar Grades in the Buffalo [N. Y.] Schools, a supplementary reader in physiology and hygiene for school and home use; also, "A Text-book of Animal Histology," by Professor Ulric Dahlgren, of Princeton University, and W. A. Keener, of the University of Virginia, which is intended as a broad foundation for future studies of embryology and morphology, as well as for the study of medicine. On July 8 they will bring out Robert Herrick's "Together," the first novel he has written since "The Memoirs of an American Citizen." If "journeys end in lovers meeting," as the old saw has it, so all novels may be said to end—in marriage. Yet Mr. Herrick has not chosen unwisely when he makes marriage the beginning of his novel instead of the end of it; indeed, "Together" may be best briefly described as a novel about—married people, for—all persons who are married.

HENRY HOLT & Co. have in press a new volume in their American Nature Series, entitled "Insect Stories," by Professor Vernon L. Kellogg, of Stanford University, author of "American Insects," etc. Although the author calls these "strange, true stories of insect life," their truth is not likely to be questioned even by the Great Denouncer. They are primarily for young folks, but are also open to grown up nature-lovers. They also announce "Principles of Physiology and Hygiene," by Dr. George W. Fitz, of Harvard University, which, being intended for high school use, is supplied with experimental work and lays special emphasis upon hygiene and sanitation; a vocabulary edition of von Moser's "Der Bibliothekar," well known to English playgoers through Gillette's acting version as "The Private Secretary," prepared for class use by Professor H. A. Farr, of Yale; "English Composition for High Schools," by Professor Franklin T. Baker, head of the English Department in the Teachers' College, New York, and Professor Herbert Vaughan Abbott, of Smith College, designed to cover the first two years of high school work; also, "Am Anfang," an elementary German reader, by Julius Tuckerman, head of the Modern Language Department of the Central High School of Springfield, Mass.

As for several years past, so for 1908, the Saalfeld Publishing Company have devoted their best energies to the publishing of high-class books for children. First and foremost are the famous Muslin Books, to which have been added two new series this year, known as the Peter Rabbit Series and the Cut-Out Series. The first explains itself, but the second is a novelty worthy of special notice. The four titles are "Dolly's Sewing Bee," "Babies of All Nations," "Baby's Menagerie" and "Baby's Home Pets." Like all the others, they are Muslin Books, as long as the baby delights in the book, with bright pictures and a verse on every page. When they cease to charm, they furnish patterns for rag dolls of all sorts, with complete wardrobes—hats, coats, dresses, etc. They will be welcomed by all small seamstresses. The Felt Books merit mention in this connection, as the depth of color and the softness of the felt to baby fingers make them very popular. There is also a new book continuing the famous Billy Whiskers Series under the title of "Billy Whiskers at the Circus." It relates the adventures of the ever-mischievous and fun-loving Billy at the big show. Then "Toodles" of "Treasure Town and Her Snowman" is a wonder tale that will carry small readers straight into fairyland and keep them there till the last page is turned and the last line read. It has been most ably pictured by Merle Johnson, with over forty pages in colors. Bound in cloth, with large type and over 175 illustrations, it is bound to be a great seller.

AUCTION SALES.

JUNE 24, 25, 10 A.M. and 2 P.M.—Library of Newell Paine, of Boston, Mass., together with a consignment from Amsterdam, Holland, including many rare old books, early printed books, 1473-1547, Koburger Bible, 1480, first book printed in Ulm, 1473, books from the Elzevir, Plantin and Bodoni presses, etc. (1397 lots.)—Libbie.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

IN BORDERLAND AND THE BLUE BEYOND

By Leigh Gross Day

Camera, brush and pen have been used to tell in verse and picture of the time when lovers are bold and maidens shy, of the "primrose path of courtship" as the author's fancy names it.
11 x 13, each page in half-tone, many in colors,
boxed..... $2.50
